Regenerate are exceedingly proud of this recognition, particularly in a sector that is evolving at the institutional level.

Huge thanks to our brilliant team, agricultural partners and investors M&G who have backed the strategy and worked with us to shape it. Thank you to the judging panel for this recognition and to the other firms named in this category.

Over the past few years, our main objective has been clear: to establish an institutional investment platform that gives investors a choice to invest in the restoration of nature through regenerative agriculture. That has required, and will continue to require, innovation, expertise, experience and persistence.

Regenerate has made great progress in 2025 in sourcing and acquiring the right assets and it's fantastic that this recognition rewards that effort. There’s still a huge amount to unlock across European agriculture, real environmental impact alongside real economic value. We’re excited about what’s ahead and will keep building in a disciplined, thoughtful way.
